

EDITORIAL

In our first year of production, 1984, we published issues in January, May and September, the latter being a double issue. The reaction, both at home and overseas, has been most encouraging. Unfortunately, in summer of 1984-85 production was delayed because of the move of the New South Wales Institute of Technology School of Law to new and more suitable premises on the corner of Quay Street and Ultimo Road, Haymarket, Sydney. Accordingly we have decided to begin 1985 with a delayed double issue which brings together some particularly interesting comments from our contributors.

Our future plans are to adopt as far as possible, a pattern of smaller, but more frequent issues. Each year we hope to publish the equivalent of four such issues. Because of the amount of material we are including in this issue we are standing over our regular Journal Review and Australian Practice to our next issue. In relation to Australian Practice, and as a general policy, we do not believe it appropriate to publish material which is otherwise easily accessible to our readers. Hence we will not normally publish material on Australian Practice otherwise available in the Australian Foreign Affairs Record. We shall however, publish the Contents pages of the Record.

The editors have pleasure in announcing the appointment of Wm.W. Gaunt & Sons, Inc., as agents for all subscriptions outside of Australia and New Zealand.
