

BIG JOB AHEAD

Practitioner who coaches a league team suffered the ignominy of losing a match 52-nil. A couple of excuses offered: "we didn't want to bother the scoreboard attendant"; and "I don't want them to peak too early." 'turn of the century is looking good...

NO GO

Star-studded cast lined up to appear in Alice for the Morris v Penguin Books defamation action arising out of comments in Evil Angels. Cast members included Ian Barker QC, Maurice Neill QC, mediawatcher Stuart Littlemore and David Caspersonn. 'tis a shame the 130kg of transcript of the Royal Commission never got to be presented in evidence: the case settled before it got to Angel J. Nonetheless, the defamation action of Phillip Toyne against former CM Paul Everingham resumes this week.

WH CONCERNS

Considerable debate over the Prostitution Regulation Bill last sittings. The Member for Nelson, Noel Padgham-Purich, asked, inter alia, whether TAFE courses dealing with expertise in the area would be offered, whether agency owners would join the Small Business Association and whether there would be workplace inspections.

NOTHING IS SACRED

On the same night the offices of the Law Society were broken into an Assistant Police Commissioner's work vehicle was stolen from outside Raffles Plaza.

LITTLE BOYS' ROOM?

A certain practitioner, who shall remain nameless, lost his way at Petty Sessions on Friday evening and found his way into the little girls' room. Oops...

CHANGING SIDES

Johnny Lawrence is departing the office of the DPP to take up a position at NAALAS. Redback looks forward to the turn of phrase he'll use in defence after the gems from the prosecution side.

SOME SPORT

Director of Legal Aid not popular with a certain hockey team: he sent the team's gun goalkeeper to Alice for a few weeks. She missed the semi-final which the team lost 3-2 in extra time. Another team member, from Elston & Gilchrist, was sent to Alice the same weekend. End of the season for the team...

YOU WENT WHERE?

Rumours about the latest blockbuster film: Rum in the Jungle produced by the Office of the DPP.

FIRM IT UP

Movements afoot at Poveys Alice Springs. Apparently the office will follow the steps of the Darwin office and flee mother's nest.
