

What Darwin barrister is always getting chatted up by women? According to *For Me magazine, it's Ben O'Loughlin:

"He's powerful

Caroline Liddy, 30, a personal assistant, says that her boyfriend Ben O'Loughlin, 32, often gets chatted up women turned on by his high-powered position as a barrister.

Carolyn says: I'd known Ben for years before we started dating. Our elder sisters are best friends. Ben had moved to Darwin and I was still in Adelaide, so I hadn't seen him for ages. Then, about a year ago, we met when he was visiting Adelaide.

I'd always thought Ben was cute and he looked even cuter - a bit more grown up. The next night we went on a date and that was the start of our long-distance relationship. It was really difficult - being in that honeymoon stage and living so far apart. I tried not to worry, but some women are turned on by the barrister thing. Once, at a party, one woman was being really flirty and saying, "Oh you're a barrister — that must be sooo interesting." When I told my friends what Ben did for a living, some said, "You've got a good one there." I think it's great that he's successful, but I'm not phased by what he does.

I sometimes wonder if he'd be better suited to someone with a similar career to him. But things are going really well — I've just moved to Darwin and we're living together. So we'll see how things go. Now I can keep a close eye on him!

Ben says: I rarely tell people I'm a barrister when I first meet them — I say I'm a lawyer. I've only been a barrister for two years, so it still feels a bit pretentious. I don't like looking like I'm out to impress, and I certainly don't wear pinstripe suits! If women flirt with me, I'm usually the last to know. The woman Carolyn mentioned came on strong. Fortunately I moved away, quickly. Carolyn has no reason to feel insecure. She's sharp and has a great wit."
