 Middle: Jag Randhawa gave Roman Micaran a lift.

Above: Timothy Bradley (left) a law student at NTU and Christopher Booth from Ward Keller took out the perpetual trophy, four bottles of champagne and some vouchers from a golf shop when they competed in the NT Bar Association's Third Annual Quixotic Challenge Golf Day.

The inaugural Law Society Footy Tipping competition awards were dished out by President Ian Morris at a glamour function to rival the Brownlow medal. Well, we did what we could at a Council meeting.

Top: Elizabeth Morris, winner of the comp, receives her football "trophy" from Morrie. She also collected an award certificate and $200.
