

The program deals with the new registration test, the right to negotiate, and the Tribunal's mediation process. Yarning About Native Title also explains how people can negotiate agreements to ensure that everyone's rights are respected and operate side by side.

The Yarning About Native Title audio tape is also an educational tool for individuals, organisations and community groups who want to learn more about native title law. The tape can also be used in community meetings or to assist applicants discuss native title with their legal representatives. Yarning About Native Title was produced by the Tribunal's Narelda Jacobs and Radio 1170/6AR, as a special feature of the regular bulletin Native Title News. The tape is free and will be circulated through Indigenous resource centres, media outlets, and native title representative bodies. It is available from Tribunal registries in all capital cities. To order a copy, phone 1800 640 501. (NNTT Media Release, 20 Apr)*

Finlayson, J. D., Rigsby, B. and Bek, H. J. 1999 Connections in Native Title: Genealogies, Kinship and Groups, Research Monograph No. 13, Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research, Australian National University, Canberra.

Summary: Connections in Native Title is a collection of papers presented to the Anthropological Research Issues and Perspectives workshop held at the Australian National University in February 1998. The papers focus on issues of 'Genealogies, kinship, descent and groups: issues and problems in the native title era'. While these papers focus on issues for anthropological research, they also speak to a wider readership interested in native title claim preparation and mediation. Contributions focus on anthropological issues of kinship and social organisation in particular where these matters are increasingly sites of political and academic debate in native title claim research, preparation and presentation. This volume includes papers by Peter Sutton, Fiona Powell, Rod Hagen, Julie Finlayson, Ian Keen, Bruce Rigsby, Nancy M. Williams and Geoff Clark. Each author draws on their significant practical experience in both land rights and native title issues to discuss these matters. (CAEPR flyer)
