RECENT PUBLICATIONS

Indigenous Futures: Choice and Development for Aboriginal and Islander Australia

by Tim Rowse, UNSW Press, 2002.

Unlike those who uphold 'cultural diversity' or 'socio-economic equality' as the objectives of Indigenous policy, in this book Tim Rowse argues that 'Indigenous choice' is a more fundamental and more widely shared political value. This publication examines the strengths and weaknesses of the Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research's social scientific representation of 'Indigenous interest'. Part 2 of the publication is on 'Land, Sea, and Economic Development', and includes short chapters on hunting, gathering and tourism; mining incomes; native title; and, representing the land-owner interests. The chapter on native title reviews CAEPR's research which focusses on the economic potential of the new 'land tenure' native title, and mentions issues such as the [re] codification of traditional laws, the negotiation of resources and income, and the emergence of new political institutions.
