

Managing editor's note

Bill Madden, Managing Editor

Bill Madden

Plaintiff 28 contains a number of items regarding children's injuries, an area in which the protection of the common law and the safety improvements litigation can bring are of great importance.

Shortly before publication we learned that Peter Cashman and Rob Davis have been appointed as the Australian representatives on the Association of Trial Lawyers of America Board of Governors. No doubt they will be able to provide us with a report on their new role for the next edition.

Plaintiff 29, due out just before Christmas, will address holiday & travel related claims and first up next year we'll incorporate some material on technology & practice issues.

Our next edition will focus on injury through exposure to chemicals and will include a report on the operations of the APLA Chemical Injury SIG chaired by Chris Phillips. As always, submissions and case notes would be appreciated. ■

Peter Cashman

Congratulations

to APLA members Peter Cashman (Sydney) and Rob Davis (Coolangatta) on their election to the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA) Board of Governors.
