

ALIA recognising excellence

Enthusiastic, skilled and visionary individuals who are committed to the profession deserve recognition and ALIA offers those that excel in their field two distinct ways in which they can be acknowledged.

If you know of an Associate or Library Technician member who has been a member for at least eight years and demonstrates that professional vision, why not nominate them as a Fellow? They may be leaders in the field of education, authors, researchers or managers who have promoted the value of libraries and information management to the community through new services and technology.

Visit www.alia.org.au/awards/fellowships for more information and the nomination form. Queries can be sent to the Awards Coordinator at awards@alia.org.au.

ALIA also offers a self-nominating category of Associate Fellow to those personal members who demonstrate a commitment to the profession through ongoing skills development and participation in the Professional Development Scheme over a minimum five year period.

If you are a member of ALIA's PD scheme and you have a significant degree of autonomy in decision making practice at work, why not aim for the distinction of Associate Fellow?

Visit www.alia.org.au/education/pd/scheme for more information and the application form. Queries can be sent to the ALIA PD and Careers Manager at pd@alia.org.au.

ALIA membership is an investment in your career. Discover the wealth behind the red star.
