RIGHT OF APPEAL AND DETERMINATION OF APPEALS.

Right of appeal in criminal cases.

3. A person convicted on indictment may appeal under this Act to the Full Court—

- (a) against his conviction on any ground of appeal which involves a question of law alone; and
- (b) with the leave of the Full Court or upon the certificate of the Judge or Chairman of General Sessions before whom he was tried that it is a fit case for appeal against his conviction on any ground of appeal which involves a question of fact alone, or a question of mixed law and fact, or any other ground which appears to the Full Court to be a sufficient ground of appeal; and
- (c) with the leave of the Full Court against the sentence passed on his conviction, unless the sentence is one fixed by law.

Determination of appeals in ordinary cases.

4. (1) The Full Court on any such appeal against conviction shall allow the appeal if they think that the verdict of the jury should be set aside on the ground that it is unreasonable or cannot be supported having regard to the evidence or that the judgment of the Court before whom the appellant was convicted should be set aside on the ground of a wrong decision of any question of law or that on any ground there was a miscarriage of justice and in any other case shall dismiss the appeal.

Provided that the Full Court may, notwithstanding that they are of opinion that the point raised in the appeal might be decided in favour of the appellant, dismiss the appeal if they consider that no substantial miscarriage of justice has actually occurred.

(2) Subject to the special provisions of this Act the Full Court shall, if they allow an appeal against conviction, quash the conviction and either direct a judgment and verdict of acquittal to be entered or direct a new trial to be had.

(3) Where a new trial is directed the Full Court may make such order as to them seems fit for the safe custody of the appellant or for admitting him to bail.

(4) On

(4) On an appeal against sentence the Full Court shall, if they think that a different sentence should have been passed, quash the sentence passed at the trial and pass such other sentence warranted in law (whether more or less severe) in substitution therefor as they think ought to have been passed, and in any other case shall dismiss the appeal.

5. (1) If it appears to the Full Court that an appellant, though not properly convicted on some count or part of the indictment, has been properly convicted on some other count or part of the indictment, the Court may either affirm the sentence passed on the appellant at the trial or pass such sentence in substitution therefor as they think proper and as may be warranted in law by the verdict on the count or part of the indictment on which the Court consider that the appellant has been properly convicted.

Powers of Court in special cases.

(2) Where an appellant has been convicted of an offence and the jury could on the indictment have found him guilty of some other offence, and on the finding of the jury it appears to the Full Court that the jury must have been satisfied of facts which proved him guilty of that other offence the Court may instead of allowing or dismissing the appeal substitute for the verdict found by the jury a verdict of guilty of that other offence and pass such sentence in substitution for the sentence passed at the trial as may be warranted in law for that other offence not being a sentence of greater severity.

(3) Where on the conviction of the appellant the jury have found a special verdict and the Full Court consider that a wrong conclusion has been arrived at by the Court before which the appellant has been convicted on the effect of that verdict the Full Court may instead of allowing the appeal order such conclusion to be recorded as appears to the Court to be in law required by the verdict, and pass such sentence in substitution for the sentence passed at the trial as may be warranted in law.

(4) If on any appeal it appears to the Full Court that an appellant found guilty of the offence with which he was charged was insane at the time of the commission of such offence so as not to be responsible according to law for his actions the Court may quash the sentence passed at the trial and order the appellant to be kept in strict custody until the Governor's pleasure shall be known in the same manner as if the appellant had been found to be insane by the special verdict of the jury under section four hundred and fifty-eight of the Crimes Act 1890.

6. (1) The operation of any order for the restitution of any property to any person or with reference to any property or the payment of money made on or in connexion with a conviction on indictment and the operation in case of any such conviction of the provisions of sub-section (1) of section twenty-nine of the Sale of Goods Act 1896 as to the re-vesting of

of the property in stolen goods on conviction shall (unless the Court before which the conviction takes place direct to the contrary in any case in which in their opinion the title to the property is not in dispute) be suspended—

- (a) in any case until the expiration of ten days after the date of the conviction; and
- (b) in cases where notices of appeal or leave to appeal is given within ten days after the date of conviction until the determination of the appeal;

and in cases where the operation of any such order or the operation of the said provisions is suspended until the determination of the appeal the order or provisions as the case may be shall not take effect as to the property in question if the conviction is quashed on appeal except by the special order of the Full Court. Provision may be made by Rules of Court for securing the safe custody of any property pending the suspension of the operation of any such order or of the said provisions.

(2) The Full Court may by order annul or vary or refuse to annul or vary any order made on or in connexion with a conviction for the restitution of any property to any person or with reference to any property or the payment of money whether the conviction or sentence is or is not quashed; and the order if annulled shall not take effect and if varied shall take effect as so varied.
